Peonies and Irises

NO more noble flower than the Peony exists. In a normal season the earliest varieties will flower around June 5 in the New York region, the later sorts keeping up a succession for at least three weeks. Nothing is more easily grown and nothing makes a more glorious display. But unlike the general run of hardy perennials, Peonies require at least two years before they are sufficiently established to flower freely, and as a rule, they are not at their best until the third year. But also, unlike most hardy perennials, Peonies do not require frequent disturbance as the crowns do not increase rapidly and therefore are perfectly happy if left undisturbed for six or even ten years. This fact makes the Peony an ideal subject for the home gardener. Even when not in flower, the foliage of the Peony is elegant and cool looking. Little or no feeding is needed and insects and diseases rarely give any trouble, and providing the ground has been well prepared, and neither subject to flooding or excessive dryness, all the attention Peonies require is the removal of the tops after they die down, and a light covering of litter or leaves when hard freezing sets in. To ensure high quality flowers, disbudding is desirable. The best time to plant is during September and October.

What has been said of the Peony more or less applies to the Iris. It is equally easy to grow and does not require disturbance for at least three years. Planted in late Summer or early Fall, strong rhizomes will flower the following year, and in the third year will bear six to a dozen superb spikes; we have seen five year clumps bear upwards of 50 spikes. By planting the dwarf, intermediate and tall bearded types, a succession of flowers may be secured from late April until the end of June. And, unlike most hardy perennials, they do not require rich ground, nor are they averse to moderately dry conditions. They flourish in the border and some even do well in moderate shade, especially the Siberian, Oriental and Japanese types, which are fibrous rooted and more or less favor a moist position. The bearded types, dwarf and tall, thrive splendidly on a rock bank, no matter how sunny it may be. Plant a selection of Irises, from the tiny pale blue Cristata to the giant Lord of June; not even orchids can surpass the modern Irises for beauty and gorgeous coloring.

Iris

Iris Germanica—German Iris, Fleur de Lis

Truly called "The Orchids of the Garden," with their wonderful colorings, ranging from pure white through all the shades of blue, mauve, purple, yellow and maroon. The flowers are of the finest texture and have a delicate fragrance. They thrive in any well-drained good garden soil if given a sunny position. Plant shallow with the rhizomes just covered.

Note.—S, means Standards, or the erect petals.

F, means Falls, or the drooping petals.

Ingeborg. Flowers large, pure white. 18 in. 35c. each.

Walhalla. S, lavender; F, wine red. 23 in. 35c. each.

Dwarf Bearded Irises

These lovely dwarf Irises are very valuable for planting in groups in front of later varieties in the border or for use as edging. The Hybrids are crosses between the Pumila and other dwarf varieties and the Iris germanica. The Pumila section are the earliest to bloom and are splendid subjects for the rockery.

Prices, 30c. each, $2.75 per 10, unless otherwise noted.

Bride. S, and F, white; green and yellow veins. Large, handsome flowers. 15 in.

Cyanea. Rich purple, with dark shadings. 4 to 8 in. May.

Ditton Purple. Clear violet purple; free flowering. 9 in. 35c. each.

Pumila atroviolacea. Violet mauve to maroon red.

Schneekuppe. S, pure white; F, white center, veined greenish yellow. 8 in.

Iris Kaempferi—Japanese Irises

These are the most gorgeous of all Irises. Strikingly beautiful in their various hues and colorings, yet so harmonious that even the sight of a mixed planting will not offend the eye, but will remain a lasting memory. Many produce very large flowers on long, stately stems. They follow the German Irises in bloom and are at their best in beginning of July.

The best time to plant them is August-September.

The plants we offer are strong, field grown clumps with several eyes and will flower the first year.

Peonies

The best time to transplant Peonies is from the beginning of September to end of October, as the plants receive the least shock at that time and get fairly well established before making the next season's growth. They grow best in light, rich loam, but any good garden soil will produce good results. The ground should be well prepared, and while well-rotted manure is beneficial to them, it should in no case be applied directly to the roots. A good mulching will help them materially. The roots should be set so that the eyes are from 2 to 3 inches beneath the surface of the soil. Deep planting is the most frequent cause of blind plants. They never produce the best flowers until the second year after planting and should be left undisturbed for a few years. It is therefore advisable to plant them 2½ to 3 feet apart. Peonies are practically immune from diseases and if strong, healthy plants are procured, there is little to fear. The only insect that may attack the Peony is the rose chafer, and then only the late varieties. The best way to destroy them is by hand-picking.

- Agida. Late dark rose. 2 yr. $1.00 each.
- Albatre. Midseason. Milk white, shaded ivory, wide center petals tinged lilac, edged with a minute carmine line; very large, compact, globular; fragrant. One of the best whites. 2 yr. $1.25 each.
